

Candace Saari Kovacic-Fleischer has taught at the Washington College of Law of American University since 1981 (with the exception of a visiting professorship at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Law in 1988). At Washington College of Law, Professor Kovacic-Fleischer's teaching has been rewarded with the University Faculty Award for Outstanding Teaching in 1987 and the Part-time Student Award for Outstanding Teaching in 1994. Her current fields of teaching and scholarship include Contracts, Remedies, Sex-based Discrimination, and Legal Aspects of Work and Parenting. Most recently, she co-authored Equitable Remedies, Restitution and Damages (5th ed., 1994; 6th ed., 2000; 7th ed., 2005). In addition, she has published a number of articles, including "Comparing Remedies for School Desegregation and Employment Discrimination: Can Employers Now Help Schools?" in SAN DIEGO LAW REVIEW (Fall 2004), "Restitution in Public Concern Cases," LOYOLA OF LOS ANGELES LAW REVIEW (Winter 2003), and "Teaching Restitution," in BRANDEIS LAW REVIEW (Spring 2001).

Three articles, "Litigating Against Employment Penalties for Pregnancy, Breastfeeding and Childcare," in VILLANOVA LAW REVIEW (1999), "United States v. Virginia's New Gender Equal Protection Analysis with Ramifications for Pregnancy, Parenting, and Title VII," in VANDERBILT LAW REVIEW (1997), and "Applying Restitution to Remedy a Discriminatory Denial of Partnership," in SYRACUSE LAW REVIEW (1983), won Washington College of Law's Pauline Ruyle Moore Scholar award for excellence in their year of publication. In addition, she contributed articles to compilations including The Oxford Companion to American Law (2002), The Encyclopedia of the American Constitution (2000), and Commercial Damages (1988, updated through 1996), and most recently, "Defamation and Free Speech," in The Encyclopedia of American Civil Liberties (forthcoming Spring 2006).

Professor Kovacic-Fleischer is currently active in the American Law Institute as part of the Restatement of the Law, Third — Restitution & Unjust Enrichment Consultative Group. In the past, she has served as a court appointed mediator for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit since 1990. In 1990-1991 she served as Chair of the Remedies Section of the Association of American Law Schools. Before joining the faculty of Washington College of Law, Professor Kovacic-Fleischer served as law clerk for The Honorable Warren E. Burger, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, Washington, D.C. in 1975-1976, and for the Honorable James L. Oakes, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in 1974-1975. She practiced law in Washington, D.C. as an associate of Cole and Groner in 1980-1981 and Wilmer, Cutler, and Pickering in 1976-1980. She holds an A.B. from Wellesley College, and received her J.D. from Northeastern University School of Law.