

The American University Journal of Gender, Social Policy & the Law

The American University Journal of Gender, Social Policy & the Law was founded in 1992 to provide a forum for those interested in gender issues and feminist legal studies. Our intent is to fill a void in feminist legal scholarship by providing an opportunity for academic discussion that is otherwise overlooked by traditional journals. By focusing on gender issues, we are committed to creating a dialogue between the sexes--a dialogue which we hope will further advance the development of gender equality in the law. Our first six volumes have been enthusiastically received, and we have moved to a four-volume format this year to include a symposium issue. We invite you to subscribe to The American University Journal of Gender, Social Policy & the Law today.
