

CONSTITUTION DAY 2007

Monday, September 17

American University Washington College of Law, Room 603
5:30 – 7:00 pm

Upholding the Constitution in the Twenty-First Century: The Role of Everybody

Celebrate the annual Constitution Day with a panel discussion of WCL experts on the different ways in which members of society, government officials, judges, law school, etc., abide by and adhere to our civic religion of constitutionalism. We tend to think that the Constitution is what five Supreme Court Justices say it is, but in reality, it is much more. Why do legislators vote for or against statutes on constitutional terms? Why do Presidents sign or veto statutes on constitutional grounds? Why do police officers wait until individuals get out of the car before arresting them?

Speakers on this critical issue will include WCL Professors

Moderator will be xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Be part of the national celebration of Constitution Day in which we join the ABA and other institutions throughout this country in thinking about this important topic.
