

The New Business Model of the Legal Profession: Building a Successful Career in Uncertain Times

Sponsored by the Office of Career & Professional Development

October 7th, 12:00pm-2:00pm

Room 603

American University Washington College of Law
4801 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC

Judith Finer-Freedman, Founder of The Balanced Worker Project™, will facilitate a discussion about the challenges lawyers face when caught between the 24/7 demands of a legal career against the backdrop of the uncertain economy and meeting work and home demands simultaneously.

*The first hour will highlight practical strategies that can be immediately executed to strengthen your skill set and broaden your marketability to potential law firms, public interest and government employers.

*The second hour will be devoted to small group discussions and role plays focusing on broadening your skill portfolio, strengthening connections with major stakeholders, and setting boundaries between work and home. This program is relevant for all practice sectors.

More on The Balanced Worker Project™:

- Named a 2009 Rising Star by the Alliance for Work-Life Progress® (AWLP) for implementing initiatives that have positively impacted the state of workplace flexibility.
- The Balanced Worker Project™ was named a Promising Business Practice in 2008 by the Business and Professional Women (BPW) Foundation.

General Registration – no charge, but required.

To register, please go to www.wcl.american.edu/secleregistration

For further information please contact: Office of Special Events & Continuing Legal Education, 202.274.4075 or seclereg@wcl.american.edu