

The Marshall-Brennan Constitutional Literacy Project Conference

Sponsored by the Marshall-Brennan Constitutional Literacy Project and the Program on Law and Government

MARCH 30, 2007
9:30 am - 12:00 pm

American University Washington College of Law
4801 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Room 603, Washington, DC

The Supreme Court is considering important cases from Seattle and Louisville that test the ability of public school systems to use race as a factor in assigning students to schools to promote diversity in elementary and secondary school classrooms. This conference will explore these cases and the role that race may play in the nation's schools in the wake of the 2003 Michigan affirmative action rulings and in a world no longer under the umbrella of Brown v. Board of Education.

9:30 am Registration and Continental Breakfast

10:00 am Panel Discussion: The Supreme Court and the Seattle and Louisville
- 12 noon Cases – Looking Ahead

SPEAKERS:

- Derek Black, Assistant Professor, Howard University Law School
- Richard D. Kahlenberg, Senior Fellow, The Century Foundation
- Francisco Negron, General Counsel, National School Boards Association

General Registration - Free
